LOBBY PROBE IS EXTENDED

ends are sought and what results are accomplished, probably will be investigated by the special senate committee before it concludes its work and submits a report to the senate.

The committee decided in executive session to submit to the senate the question of a further broadening of the scope of its inquiry.

It is believed that the time limit of two days imposed on the committee, will be extended, and that the investigation will go into every phase that the committee suspects as lobbying.

Free Trade Bands in the West.
Senator Newlands told his Democratic colleagues that the tariff bill might go down in history as maintaining the Atlantic coast and middle western states on a protective basis, while the rest of the country was free to trade with the world.

At the same time, he added, nearly 4000 articles competitive with the products of eastern factories, were put on the dutiable list.

Newlands Is for Harmony.
The senator insisted he was for Democratic harmony and explained that his "warrior of expression" in a recent speech had not been directed at the administration, but was prompted by the unjustifiable statement of Senator James, of Kentucky, on the sugar tariff.

As to sugar, wool and citrus fruits he contended for a gradual reduction of the tariff and urged the administration of a special commission consisting of the secretaries of war, interior and of agriculture to make an immediate study on the subject and report to the senate.

Only the approval of the president now is needed to make a law of the sundry civil appropriation bill, with the exemption of labor organizations and farmers' association from anti-trust prosecutions with funds provided by the measure. By a vote of 48 to 12, the senate rejected from its opposition to an item in the bill, as it passed the house, reducing the number of members of the board of managers of national soldiers' homes from 11 to five. This was the only remaining item of disagreement between the two houses.

Tariff Bill Not in Danger.
Administration leaders in the senate today asserted the party was ready for harmonious action and predicted a clear Democratic majority for the tariff measure as it comes from the caucus. The Democratic majority retained consideration of subcommittee reports.

Change Print Paper Schedule.
Amending the section of the Underwood tariff bill which would place on the free list all print paper valued at not more than 2 1/2 cents a pound, the majority members of the senate finance committee voted to incorporate in the bill the provisions of the Canadian reciprocity act passed in 1911. This action would extend the free list to include all print paper valued at not more than four cents a pound on condition that no export duty, export license fee, or other export charge of any kind whatever, or any prohibition or restriction in any way of the exportation shall have been imposed upon such paper, board, or wood pulp, or the wood pulp used in the manufacture of such paper or board.

Operates Against Canada.
Although the word "Canada" is omitted from the amendment adopted by the committee, it would operate against Canada because of that nation's restrictions on exports of wood and chemical pulp. Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, said that other restrictive provisions or countervailing duties aimed against Canada which have been proposed have not been based upon the majority and that the matter would be taken up again. He also said that there might be reconsideration of the action thus far taken.

Delay Customs Changes.
The proposed reorganization of the customs service would be postponed two years by the passage of the bill introduced by Representative Clark, of Florida. The senate has passed a bill to delay reorganization six months.

Large Action on Currency.
President Wilson wants currency legislation enacted at the present session of congress and will bend every effort to accomplish that purpose. The president planned to write his currency message to congress on the main features of his currency bill.

Texas Scores Wall Street.
An undercurrent of opposition among a number of the house Democrats to the plan for currency legislation at this session of congress took definite shape when Representative Henry of Texas, chairman of the main committee, openly charged that Wall Street was back of the propaganda for currency legislation.

Adams and chairman Owen of the senate and house banking and currency committee, respectively, had previously charged the main features of their currency bill.

Under the plan, the concentration of the banking laws, and the revision of both the banking and currency laws at the next session of congress, Mr. Henry charged that further investigation of the so-called money trust should be pressed immediately.

The committee, he declared, barely scratched the surface of the factors underlying the concentration of control and money credit, but the controller Mr. Henry charged that further investigation of the so-called money trust should be pressed immediately.

Wall Street Bankers. He added, "we are considering legislation on the currency question in order that they may make a market for their commercial paper (much of it based on rotten securities) and have currency issued on their assets."

Bill Amends Banking Laws.
Mr. Henry introduced a bill to amend the banking laws, so as to make banking associations subject to the visitatorial powers "exercised or directed by congress or by either house of congress."

While this was going on it became known that the administration measure representing the combined views of President Wilson, secretary of the treasury, McAdoo, senator Owen, of Oklahoma, chairman of the senate banking and currency, and Representative Glass, chairman of the house committee, were to be introduced in the house Wednesday and a full committee of the house would meet to take up the bill within the next day or two.

Emergency Currency Not Needed.
Mr. Henry in his statement accompanying his bill declared that the "Wall street bankers, thinking the people confused and upset by tariff revision, have sought to stand off and endeavoring to hurry through a plan giving them the right to issue or have issued by the government, asset currency."

There is positively, at present, no need of an emergency currency bill, the Aldrich-Vreeland bill is on the statutes and has a year to live. It certainly suffices for that length of time.

MR. RENT PAYER:-

Why Keep on Paying Rent When This Same Rent Money Will Buy One of These Classy New Bungalows?

Even though a rented flat or cottage is modern and convenient and one decorates it tastefully with pictures, curtains, curios, etc., it doesn't give satisfaction. There is something missing and it is the fact that you do not own it. Man just naturally protests against paying rent for something he wants and knows he should own. It goes deeply "against the grain" to dig down in his pockets each month to fatten his landlord's bank roll.

No, you are not compelled to continue paying rent. You can stop right now and own one of these pretty, cozy, modern bungalows with a yard where you can have a fine lawn and beds of flowers—a home where you can live the way you should.

The money that you have been spending each month in the form of rent will secure one of these bungalows—the ones in the illustration.

A Small Payment Down And The Rest Like Rent

The above bungalows are well built in every detail—hardwood floors throughout—Every modern convenience—built in features, etc., piped for vacuum cleaners. They are situated on the Highland Park car line—High grounds, with a beautiful view of the valley and mountains.

CHASE IS CHASED TO MEXICAN HILLS

Outrigger Pursuers Across Santa Fe Bridge and Huris Rocks at Man

Who Almost Caught Him.

Henry W. Chase, of W. H. Chase, who is alleged to have given the Borderland Garage company at Douglas, Ariz., a $650 check for a two seater Lytle automobile without having funds in the bank, said to be in the foothills surrounding Juarez, with four rurales after him.

Jesse C. Stansel, chief of the city detective department, is nursing a skinned and otherwise bruised knee. The chief fell down, chasing Chase from the Crismore garage, West San Antonio and Santa Fe bridge.

Chase crossed the Santa Fe bridge, and the chief limped back to get assistance. A. F. King, of the Crismore garage, got closer to Chase in the chase than anyone. He followed him into the Juarez foothills. King was almost in touching distance when Chase hurled a rock at him, striking him in the chest. Then King sat down and waited for reinforcements.

Police chief I. N. Davis, W. D. Greet and Dr. Frank Lynch, in an automobile, arrived on the scene in the way of reinforcements. They saw Chase going further into the foothills. Later the four rurales came up, and took to the foothills, chasing Chase.

Sheriff Harry Wheeler, of Douglas, has been notified that Chase is being chased, while the automobile is safe in a local garage. Sheriff Wheeler wired the chief that he would come to El Paso after the automobile. The check that Chase is said to have given for the automobile was drawn on a Phoenix bank, it is claimed.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED TO FORMER POLICEMAN
Leslie Perryman, a former policeman, was arrested Friday afternoon on a complaint charging him with embezzlement, filed in the county court. County attorney W. J. Bryan stated that the complaint was made by Mrs. Frances Naper and her husband. They told him, the county attorney said, that they owned a rifle and Perryman agreed to sell it. He secured a purchaser, it is alleged, who gave him $15 for the gun. The money, it was charged, was not turned over. Perryman was arrested Wednesday on an aggravated assault charge. He is alleged to have struck Mrs. Naper.

There were 13 cars of bridge repairing material on the train, and these were cut out of the train and burned on a siding. Colonel Lewis decided that the train was too big to take to Pearson and came to El Paso on the passenger train, which is now running between Casas Grandes and Juarez.

REBELS DRIVE OFF CATTLE OF AMERICAN
Langtry, Tex., June 14.—Carrancistas again raided La Perla, the big ranch of Col. Francisco Garcia, on the Mexican side near here. This time they drove off 10,000 sheep and a flock of goats.

It is said that the sheep are the property of Walter Wetherbee, of Del Rio, this country, who is said to have recently purchased the ranch.

Word has reached here that Mr. Wetherbee has entered a protest to the United States government, and that they promised to restore all the sheep and goats, and that they are now being driven back to the ranch.

MEXICAN PRISONERS MAY BE SENT BACK BY WATER
Free beans are about to end for the 235 federal prisoners who are being held at Fort Bliss by the United States army. General Hugh L. CONTEST IS MADE ON "PLACER CLAIM"

Tract Near Brick Plant, Opposite the Smelter, in Controversy at Las Cruces Land Office.

A contest is now on for the 130 acres of land in New Mexico, just up the river from the present plant of the El Paso Brick company, across the river from the smelter. A hearing was held before the land office at Las Cruces Thursday to hear the protest of the state of New Mexico, which was formal, and of J. H. McKnight, of Los Angeles, who claims that the land is agricultural and not mineral, and cannot be patented under the laws of the United States for taking up claims to mineral lands. The claim is known as the International placer claim, and is 130 acres in extent, near where the brick company has its shale and clay beds on the New Mexico side of the river.

The 130 acres are a part of school section 15, of New Mexico public lands. Under act of congress passed in 1898, the school sections were given to the state of New Mexico—then a territory. But it provided that no mineral land should pass in this way and that mineralized sections should remain the property of the United States and could be patented under the mineral laws of the United States. Should any such school sections in New Mexico be found to be mineralized, the state had the privilege of selecting the same acreage in other parts of the state.

The El Paso Brick company, previous to the passage of this act in 1898, had taken up the 130 acres of section 15 and had applied for a patent to the United States. This was protested formally by New Mexico and by J. H. McKnight. Proof was introduced in the form of witnesses from El Paso to show that the land was unfit for agriculture, but was mineralized with non-metallic minerals in the form of fine brick clay and shale. McKnight has filed a mining location on land adjoining section 15, attorneys for the brick company say, and this is filed upon the same character of deposits as found on the claim which he has contested as not being mineral land. No decision has yet been rendered in the case.

"GO EASIES" TO HOLD PICNIC AT MONTROYA

This was decided at a meeting of the members held Friday night at the El Paso club.

Tom Conchucine was appointed chairman of the committee on arrangements. The members are organizing a banding team for the El Paso baseball team. In line with this, beginning Sunday it was agreed that the members of the band must occupy at least six boxes at the ball park for Sunday games.

EARLY FILES SUIT FOR $20,000 DAMAGES

Friday Bernard Early, known as Barney Early, filed suit in the 34th district court against the El Paso Electric Railway company, asking for the sum of $20,000 for personal injuries. The plaintiff alleges that the injuries were received August 30 of last year, when a street car of the defendant company collided with an automobile in which he was riding. The accident, it was said, occurred at the intersection of Stanton and Fourth streets.

DENVER WOMEN BATHERS MUST WEAR BLOOMERS AND SKIRTS
Denver, Colo., June 14.—A skirt, bloomers and a waist that comes close to the neck is the official bathing suit for women under the commission for government, as tentatively designed by Otto F. Thum, commissioner of property, and therefore in charge of the park department, incidentally all the city beaches.

"I certainly believe it is not right for women to appear at a public bathing place clad only in tights," he said.

That Rio Grande Silt

By S. R. Mitchell
State College, N. M.

MUCH has been said about the silt or mud carried along by the Rio Grande. Some thought, less or totally ignorant ones have at once condemned this valuable fertilizer, perhaps on account of its ugly and sticky appearance. None, however, who has done any real investigation work with it, will be found to make such a radical statement.

Chemical Analysis Tells Truth.
The fact remains that chemical analyses of this same silt made at the New Mexico experiment station have shown it to contain valuable fertilizing constituents. Of the three most important foods for plants, this silt is found to contain large quantities of potash and phosphoric acid, while it also contains small quantities of nitrogen, the third constituent.

A fertilizer is not always most valuable because it is most available at once to plants, but must be slowly available, so it will not become soluble and then possibly be all washed out of the soil in a year or two. Mother Nature, in her own chemical laboratory, has a way of gradually dissolving fertilizers, thus rendering them soluble a little at a time, so that this food in solution, will be taken in, just as we drink milk. If we used a prepared fertilizer, often too much is used, and some is wasted. This will never happen with silt, because it is only slowly available as a food for plants.

To Plow or Not to Plow.
If allowed to run onto land with the irrigation water, it soon forms a layer of mud, which is almost water-tight, and consequently airtight. Unless this mud is plowed under and mixed thoroughly with the soil, the roots of plants will not receive the proper amount of water and aeration, and the crop will naturally fail in time, especially if it be a shallow-rooted one, such as small grains. On the other hand, when properly mixed with the soil, river silt gradually enriches it with plant foods and at the same time permits necessary percolation of water and aeration.

Continuous use of river silt on a deep rooted crop, such as alfalfa, unless occasionally plowed under, will in time clog up the soil, so as to prevent a maximum yield, but it seems to be less detrimental to this crop, than to a grain crop when not plowed in.

Scientific Investigation.
Experiments performed by the Arizona experiment station have shown that alfalfa plant nearest the ditch diverting silted water, gave the poorest yield, while those farthest from the ditch gave the best yield. This is readily seen to be due to the greatest amount of silt clogging the plants nearest the ditch, where it naturally settled out of the irrigation water.

Further work done at the same station showed that in the use of well water ter, free from silt, the plant nearest the source gave the best yield of crop. This experiment bears out the conclusions regarding silt, indicating that this silt received more water than the others and had no accumulation of anything to clog the soil.

A Factor in Irrigation.
We thus conclude that the Rio Grande silt is certainly a factor in agricultural districts, and in some cases of careless use, is somewhat of a menace in time; but where properly and intelligently used, is of immense value as a fertilizer.

The French in Mexico

Fifty Years Ago This Month They Marched Into That Country to Establish a Monarchy.
By Rev. Theo. B. Gregory

It was just 50 years ago—June 10, 1863—that the soldiers of Napoleon the Third, under the command of Gen. Forey, with drums beating and bunting fluttering, marched into Mexico, to establish upon these western shores a great Latin kingdom.

Alma immediately after the entry of the French, and doubtless by pre-arranged program, there was a meeting of the "Assembly of Notables," which it was decided, with all due solemnity, that there should be established a monarchy with the City of Mexico as its capital and with Maximilian, archduke of Austria, as emperor.

On June 12, 1864, Maximilian and his wife entered the city of the Aztecs as emperor and empress, and three years later, June 19, 1867, the farce ended with the crack of the rifles which sent Maximilian to his death and his consort, broken hearted, back to Europe.

The "Assembly of Notables" did not amount to as much as its members thought it did; and the old world was given its first practical demonstration of the power of the "Monroe doctrine," a doctrine which it would seem, Napoleon the Third had not looked upon with becoming seriousness.

To this day the Maximilian episode remains a puzzle to the student of history. Some say that the idea of a great imperial Latin state side by side with the great English-speaking communities furnished the fascination upon Napoleon's mind, which was responsible for the business, while others hold that the pursuit of the bubble was a necessity imposed upon the emperor by the exigencies of his situation.
